

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Jorge Rudko was born at the advent of the computer age, before the widespread adoption of digital technology, and was nurtured alongside the rise of the cyber culture movement.

Jorge is an Argentinean native who grew up in the city of Buenos Aires to Eastern European immigrants and moved to the United States in the early 1980's as modern technology began to surface.

Interestingly, he worked for a multinational telecommunications company, often holding the position of regional top trader, when cellphones were just becoming the “must have” novelty.

Jorge also worked professionally in various capacities for the Spanish news network of the National Broadcast Company (NBC).

He has served in the Argentinean army and continues to serve his fellow men, with the same pride in country and culture, whether it be the United States, or Argentina.

Jorge is currently an education specialist in the North Carolina Area Health Education Center, where he is involved in the area of Public Health. His duties broaden as a consecutive and simultaneous interpreter and a certified medical interpreters' trainer.

Jorge is also an ordained minister, a certified premarital and marriage Prepare-Enrich professional. As a qualified Crown associate, he teaches family finances.

Jorge and his beautiful wife, Adrienne—“the best cook in the world”—live in Charlotte, North Carolina. They have four wonderful sons—Jeremy, Steven, David and Michael, plus the added blessing of two beautiful daughters-in-law Lindsey and Oksana and four adorable grandchildren—Scarlett, Jakobi, Azariah and Solomon, who fill their lives with added joy.

You may contact Jorge by visiting his website at www.jorgerudko.com